BRIEF ABSTRACT OF LETTER.

Submitted to His Highness.

The finding of a suitable provision for this young gentleman formed the subject of some anxious consideration. Having regard to the antecedents of his family well known and respected in Bangalore, to the services of his father rendered personally to the ruler's family, and lastly to the creditable manner in which he has secured for himself a good education I have thought it desirable to give him a good start. Such a beginning to a young man has both its advantages & disadvantages and among the latter may be chiefly mentioned the false notions one begins to form of himself and the consequent loss of exertions for subsequent usefulness. This has been exemplified in the case of both Bheemappa and Hosanali both of whom though fairly educated failed to pass the required examination. They did not make an earnest attempt ~~also~~ ^{even} - The same may be said of Basavaraj's and Ali Khan Police Probationers. Basavaraj's it does not even show an aptitude for his work. These therefore do not encourage me much to multiply such recommendation but the case of Mirza I hope may be different. He seems intelligent & as I have already said taken his degree creditably. I do not know whether he knows Kanaden and if he does not he must devote his early attention to learn that language. ^{Then he} ~~must~~ ^{pass} ~~the~~ ^{the} ~~examination~~ ^{and criminal tests.} must pass the ~~examination~~ ^{exams}. This he may be required to do within one year of his app't, and if he fails a second chance may be given in the second year - and if he fails to complete his exams before December 1906 he must be warned that he will be removed.

Subject to these conditions His Highness may be graciously pleased to appoint Mirza a Police Probationary ~~at the rate of~~ of one hundred Rupees per mensem.
If in the first year he passes the ~~examination~~ ^{exams} and shows a satisfactory progress he may be promoted to 150 Rs at the end of that year and to two hundred Rupees at the end of the second year ^{if he continues to give satisfaction}. He will therefore make an app't of Police on the occurrence of a vacancy.

During the two years of his probation he must be prepared to be in charge of a patrol and to do the duties of a Police Inspector till he gains sufficient experience.
